Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-13 and 50-60 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kiron et al. (US 2003/0074293) in view of Groveman et al. (US 7,103,569).

Re claims 1, 6, and 11-13, Kiron teaches a method operable on a computer for establishing a derivative financial product (para. 0026: Kiron discloses list derivatives on the securitized open end funds), comprising the steps of:

storing on computer information defining a collared option hedge product for a selected stock (para. 0063 ; Kiron discloses an index of securitized funds, as well as linked derivative securities including puts and calls, futures, caps and floors, total return swaps, collars, etc);

allocating the collected demand for collared option hedge product amongst a plurality of customers (para. 0021-0037 and 0046; Kiron allocating portfolio value to a fixed number of shares over a predetermined period of time comprised by a real time open ended financial product); and storing the allocated demand on computer (para. 0041 and 0043; Kiron discloses an electronic database (a "master database") of extensive statistical information stored in a computer).

However, Kiron does not explicitly teach collecting demand for collared option hedge product from a plurality of potential customers. On the other hand, Groveman discloses collecting demand for collared option hedge product from a plurality of potential customers when he discloses the step of determining the best candidates against which puts or calls can be sold (col. 3, lines 31-67). Groveman discloses the steps of enhancing the risk/reward profile of investing in the broader equity market or a particular sector of the market and offers the potential for profit in both rising and falling markets. Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to collect demand for collared option hedge product from a plurality of potential customers when determining the best candidates in relation to options trading including collars as discloses in Groveman.

Re claims 2 and 7, Groveman teaches product features including a put option strike price, a call option strike price, an active time period and a maximum quantity of stock accommodated by product (fig. 1). Groveman discloses all puts sold the sum of the puts' strike price times its quantity times and the ordinary contract multiplier for an options contract. The strike prices that comprise the basket hedge is preferably made equal to the notional value of the tracking basket.

Re claims 3 and 8, Groveman teaches demand includes a quantity of stock for investing in collared option hedge product (col. 3, lines 31-39). Groveman discloses a tracking basket of equities is selected using optimization techniques to ensure that the selected stocks (both identity and quantity) satisfy prescribed criterias.

Re claims 4, 9, 52, and 56, Kiron teaches if the demand for collared option hedge product exceeds the maximum quantity of stock accommodated by product, allocating the availability of the collared option hedge product in accordance with a predetermined plan (para. 0021-0037 and 0046).

Re claims 5, 10, 53, and 57, Groveman teaches predetermined plan includes diminishing the requested quantity of stock participation in the collared option hedge product for each of plurality of customers by a percentage equal to the percentage by which total demand exceeds the maximum quantity of stock allocated for the collared option hedge product (col. 4, lines 35-48).

Re claims 50, 54, and 58-60, Kiron and Groveman teach a method as claimed in claims 1-2, 6-7, and 11-13. Therefore the rationale applied in the rejection of claims 1-2, 6-7, and 11-13 applies herein.

Art Unit: 3691

Re claim 51 and 55, Kiron teaches storing on computer for each of plurality of collared option hedge products a close date for allocating demand to product and closing, upon the occurrence of a close date, access to a collared option hedge product (para. 0041 and 0043). Kiron discloses an electronic database (a "master database") of extensive statistical information stored in a computer.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
